

Continuing Education requirements for RMSRO Alpine Officials

“USSA Alpine Officials who are certified as Technical Delegate, Referee, Jury Adviser, Chief of Race, Chief of Course, Timing & Calculations, or Race Administrator are required to attend an update/clinic at least every two years to maintain certification.

- If an official has missed an update for two years, he or she may be reinstated to the previous level by attending a recognized update.
- If an official has missed an update for three or more years, he or she may be reinstated by passing the appropriate examination, i.e. Level 1 or 2 must pass the Level 1 exam, Level 3 or 4 must pass the Level 3 exam.
- An official may not violate the update rule for a second time and maintain certification.”

RMSRO now provides information on the update status of certified officials. A column labeled “Update Yr” appears on the Roster published on the RMSRO web site. In addition, each official’s RMSRO Officials License for 2009-10 shows the Update Year.

RMSRO Key for “Update Year” Column

RMSRO officials certified as Technical Delegate (TD), Referee (RF), Jury Adviser (JA), Chief of Race (CR), Chief of Course (CC), Timing & Calculations (TC), or Race Administrator (RA) will be considered current if their Update Year listed in the RMSRO Roster is “10” (season 2009-10) or “09” (season 2008-09).

Officials with certifications in any of the above categories whose most recent update/clinic was in “08” (season 2007-08) have their Update Year underlined in the RMSRO Roster. Those officials are not current, but may be reinstated to current status by attending a recognized update/clinic.

Officials with certifications in any of the above categories with Update Year of “07” (season 2006-07) or earlier, or who have taken no update clinics, have their Update Year indicated in the RMSRO Roster as either “07” or “”. Those officials are not current, but may be reinstated by passing the appropriate examination as stated above.

Officials whose only certifications are as Competition Official (CO) or Data Management (DM) do not have a specific update requirement, although RMSRO encourages all officials to take periodic updates. Update Years are indicated in the RMSRO roster for those officials as well, although none are underlined.
